

Cloth Diapers

Cloth diapers are a natural, safe, and healthy alternative to disposable diapers that help the environment by reducing the overall waste that is created.

Modern cloth diapers are much easier to use than those of the past. They're easily laundered diapers with snaps or Velcro® closures and waterproof banding around the waist and legs, complete with breathable fibers and adorable patterns.

With cloth diapers, you will get fewer blowouts and not have to worry about suspicious chemicals used in making disposable diapers (the part that makes them absorbent).

About TRFCDC

The Rebecca Foundation Cloth Diaper Closet is a national cloth diaper lending bank with chapters located in cities across the United States. We provide support, education, and guidance to low income or in-need families who wish to cloth diaper and/or natural parent their children but are unable due to financial constraints.

Need Assistance?

Families who are interested in receiving assistance from The Rebecca Foundation and are currently on government assistance such as WIC, Food Stamps, or Medicaid may complete a paper or online application.

We also understand that not all families in need may qualify for government assistance programs. We encourage those families to apply as we take each case under consideration. If you would like to discuss your situation with the foundation, please take a moment to contact us today.
